

I think that it is a travesty that this rule is even being considered. A free press is necessary in a democracy to inform the public well enough to run the country.

Will less viewpoints in television increase our democratic institutions? Will more people vote with less TV coverage of elections and issues? I think it's a sad sad comment on the state of our country that decisions like this are even MADE without public input, aside from "comments" which Powell can chuck aside without any regard.
